The Indian Trouble.

COMMISSIONER MEACHAM'S DEFENSE.

WASHINGTON, October 19.—Ind an Commissioner Meacham writes, under date of October 2, a p i vate letter from Los Pinos detailing "the first forty eight hours of excitement when the Utes stripped for a fight and demanded the murderer of the Indian." He says the facts of the affair were that an ox team ter, with little or no provocation, killed young Johnson, a son of Chief Shavano, thirty miles from the agency The next morning fifty armed Utes appeared before the agent's door and demanded the blood of the murderer, every man with arms uncovered and the wife and mother of the dead boy filling the air with wild cries. Berry and Meacham assured them the man would be caught, and the agent went out after the murderer, followed by the mad human tigers. To satisfy the Utes fifteen men and one office went along, and at C ine's ranch the murderer was found in charge of citizens.

The soldiers guarded him all night, the Indians forming an outer guard. The scene was exciting beyond description until two o'clock at night, when all became quiet The citizens desired to wreak vengeance on the murderer, and the Indians sat watching like hyenas every movement. Berry worked as man never worked before to keep the Indians from exploding but at nine the Utes prepared for a general slaughter, saying: "No use. White man no die. All Utes die. White man no care." Citizens understood the peril. Berry consented to return the prisoner to their charge, and they started with their prisoner to Gunnison. The Utes appeared to agree that the prisoner might be taken to Gunnison. The army escort then left for Camp Berry, and I remained until everything seemed settled and every Ute had started home.

Last night three white men, good sober men came to the agency and reported that white men and Utes had surprised them and taken the prisoner. They were terribly excited. The fate of the murderer is only conjectured at this time. The Utes are coming in as I close this They seem quiet. I think the peril is over, unless some attempt should be made to discover the rescuers of yesterday. If that is done I can see the only thing that will save the treaty, save blood and secure peace, is to let the matter rest where it is and make payment without delay

Commissioner Meacham, in a letter dated October 5th from Los Pinos, says he believes the compromise with the Indians was made in good faith by Agent Berry, and was no put up job, as some teamsters claim The Indians would not agree that the murderer should go to the military camp, but said they would allow him to go to Gunnison, if his trial and conviction would follow. The escort was chosen by the prisoner himself and it was believed the danger was over.

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN PITKIN AND SCHURZ

DENVER, October 19.—Yesterday morning Governor Pitkin received the following telegram from the Gunnison. —

To Governor Pitkin —

Berry and others are safe from mobs in Gunnison. Commander at post is protecting Berry, and secreted him from the state authorities

GEORGE YEALE, Sheriff

W. B HOLTON, Deputy.

PITKIN TO SCHURZ

In answer to Secretary Schurz' telegram, Governor Pitkin sent the following last night.

DENVER, COL., October 18

Hon Carl Schurz, Secretary of the Interior, Washington, D C —As there is no telegraphic line to Gunnison City. I am unable to get accurate and reliable reports from there. I have no advices of two companies of state militia having started for the reservation, and disbelieve the rumors The information which has reached me is that the sheriff arrested Berry over a week ago at the agency, that Berry persuaded the sheriff to accompany him to the cantonment, about four miles distant, when he escaped from the sheriff Two dispatches reached here to day concerning him, one stating that he is secreted by the Indians, and the other that he is protected by the commander of the post I respectfully request that you require the commander of the fort to deliver him to the sheriff of Gunnison county, at Gunnison City This will avoid the necessity of the sheriff taking a state force with him to make the arrest. Although his efforts to escape have strengthened the conviction as to his guilt, I have no apprehensions as to his personal safety when once in the custody of the sheriff at Gunnison Captain Cline has been in jail for about a week without being molested The sheriff telegraphed me to day that Berry and others are safe from mobs in Gunnison county If you desire to have the military commander deliver him to the sheriff, I should like to be informed of the decision that I may notify the sheriff at once, that further preparations for making the arrest will be unnecessary FREDERICK W PITKIN

When this was written Governor Pitkin had not the the message of Berry to the Indian department, or the above answer to the secretary would have been materially changed. However, the whole aspect of the case is changed by the following message received this morning, and which demonstrates that the policy of the interior department is to protect Berry. The message is from Gen. Pope and is as follows:

FORT LEAVENWORTH, October 19

To Gov. F. W Pitkin.

I have recieved orders from the president of the United States to protect Indian Agent Berry from arrest pending a consideration of the subject by the attorney general Orders were sent to Major Fletcher commanding at Uncompahgre agency to this effect I will leave for Denver to morrow to see you

JOHN POPE,
Brev. Maj. Gen'l Com'd'g.

The governor has also received the following from the interior department. The following telegram has been sent to Agent Berry. If criminal process of the state is sought to be served upon you by its lawful officers, and your arrest is made under same, the U. S. troops cannot resist the service or eject state officers erving the process from the reservation. If the persons named by you are intruders upon the reservation without process from the state, the troops may be called upon and eject them under the ordinary right of protecting the reservation from intruders. If as reported, the state militia are accompanying and supporting the execution of a state process, they cannot be excluded as intruders, but if they are not supporting the state process they have no right on the reservation and the United States troops may be called upon to exclude them, but no collision shall be provoked, and if discretion is used, none need occur. The United States attorney has started for the agency and will give you all necessary advice. In carrying out these instructions, the preservation of the peace at the present time is all-important, and the department will co operate to that end. It relies upon your wisdom and discretion to avert trouble.

Killed by the Cars.

DENVER, October 19.—A man about forty-five years old, named Gordon, was killed at the D. & R. G car shops to night by being run over by the cars.

GENERAL NEWS.

Hamilton County Returns.

CINCINNATI, October 19.—Hamilton county's official returns give Townsend, republican, 34,123; Long, democrat, 31 535, Lloyd, national, 54; Doan, prohibitionist, 12. For judge of the supreme court, McElvain, republican, 34,332; Follett, democrat 31,419 Average republican majority 2,845, democratic gain over last year 800.

Victorio Killed at Last.

GALVESTON, October 19.—A News special from El Paso says that intelligence reached there to day that the Indian Chief Victorio had been killed and most of his band had been killed or captured

General Buell who crossed the river acting in conjunction with the Mexican force was notified ten days since by General Terassas that a further advance into the interior of Mexico would be objected to by the Mexican government General Buell immediately withdrew to the American side. To day Dr Marian Samaniego, of Bass del Norte, received a letter from a brother at Carriscoll which says that a lieutenant under Terassas, coming for supplies, brought the news that General Terassas had destroyed nearly all Victorio's band including himself. The lieutenant gives the following particulars: On the afternoon of the 14th the troops overtook and surrounded the Indians, the latter being in position upon two hills known as Los Castillio, one of which they were forced to abandon. On the morning of the 15th the fight was renewed, resulting in the almost complete annihilation of the whole party. Chief Victorio's fifty warriors and eight women and children were killed, seven women and children taken prisoners, and 250 head of horses and mules recaptured. The Mexican loss was three killed and three wounded. The Indians were almost entirely destitute of ammunition. Within the last year Victorio and his band have murdered upwards of 400 persons.

Garfield to the Lincoln Club

MENTOR, O, October 19.—The Lincoln Club of Indianapolis, 400 strong, visited Garfield to day, wearing straw hats and linen dusters as a burlesque on the Jefferson Club of that city who wear rich costumes. Their spokesman said they brought good news and promises from Indiana. General Garfield said he was glad to hear it and referred to their costume which the general said resembled the old Continental uniform. He referred to Lincoln and to Indiana's proud history He said he prized the news they brought not so much because of its personal relations but because it showed of the revival of the spirit of '76, of Abraham Lincoln and universal liberty

The Storm

POUGHKEEPSIE N Y October 19—No western passengers have passed here since yesterday morning. Reports from along the New York Central show the passengers are blocked west of Rochester by snow and ice

ST PAUL, October 19.—The snow storm reported to the southern part of the state along the Southern Minnesota road and on the Sioux City east of St James On these lines the cuts are full of snow and the drifts several feet deep on the track No trains have moved since Friday night Hastings & Dakota travel is prevented by snow east of Sewart On the northern line there is less snow than, detention to moving trains arising from the disabling of telegraph lines by wind. There is some snow, however, on the St Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba road west of the river.

CHICAGO, October 19 —The Inter Ocean's Muskegon special says that not a single vestige is left of the schooner Grenada, which went to pieces off shore there. There are only two survivors, Wm. Bissell, the mate, and Angus Fried, the captain's brother The latter reports the vessel left Chicago with a smart breeze Friday evening, but the steering apparatus soon became worthless and the schooner was at the mercy of the waves, the storm hour by hour increasing in violence They soon sighted land and began building a raft. One sailor was caught between parts of the rocking vessel and nearly crushed, but was wrapped in canvas and put on the raft. The waves washed him overboard The captain lost his hold by the breaking of the raft and was drowned when near the shore. The narrator held on for a while and then swam ashore. All the rest of the crew, number not stated, were drowned before their eyes

CHICAGO, October 19.—A press correspondent telegraphs from Holland, Michigan, this morning, that a lot of camp stools, a part of the forward deck, and inside partitions showing the graining, and evidently belonging to a passenger steamer, were washed ashore about a mile north of the harbor. A bucket marked "Str. Alpena," a spiral staircase and a piano with the lid torn off were found Men are watching the shore for other portions of the wreck.

CHICAGO, October 19 —The steam barge Trader, which plies between Chicago and Muskegon, and does a lumber business, and which, according to advices and reports of officers of a schooner who have seen her wreckage, has been lost and gone to pieces on the east shore of Lake Michigan. Her captain was Eli Brown and she was manned by a crew of ten men. She measured 150 tons, was classed B 2 and was valued at $6,000 All hands have probably perished.

Sections of the Trader and of the Alpena washed ashore at Stony Creek

HOLLAND, Mich., October 19 —A man just in from Ventura, eight miles north, says that during the night a bucket, two life preservers and a cabin door, all marked Alpena, came ashore there. A lot of camp stools, part of the forward deck, and inside portions showing fine grain work, one piano with the upper lid gone, Visober, New York, maker; also an oval stairway and a bucket were found on the beach a mile north of the Trader. The bucket is marked Steamer Alpena; nothing else is marked. Men are watching the shore for other portions of the wreck.

GRAND HAVEN, MICH., October 19.—The passengers on the steamer Alpena, as far as can be learned, were as follows: W S Benham, Ed Harold and wife, M Crossman, Mrs. B F Curtis and Capt H V Squier, of Grand Haven; Mrs Bradley and two daughters, Santa Fe, N M, Mrs B Cole, Illinois, sister of F H Hollbrook, Muskegon, agent of the Good ich line; H F Locke, agent of Hall Bros, Muskegon; Rev Farrell Hart and wife, White Pigeon, Mich; Mrs Rogers, agent glass works Syracuse, N Y; John J Brown, ex steward of the Alpena; John Osborne, wife and three children, Chicago, Maggie Mach, ex-stewardess of the Alpena; N A McGilvry, St Joseph, Mich; a man with three children, name unknown; C Kunzer, Fred Spaith, G Holbinger, Grand Rapids; L F Andreuth, Muskegon; L D Heyton, New York; Harris L St Clair, Chicago; W C Pettibone, Chicago; a Jew by the name of Sinsky, a scrap iron buyer, Chicago

HOLLAND MICH., October 19 —Pieces of the wreck of the Alpena are coming ashore The piano has been identified. The body of Mrs Bradley, of Santa Fe, was the first to come ashore She had been spending the summer at Grand Haven with two children. Watchers are patrolling the shores waiting for further wreckage

SIOUX CITY, October 19 —A storm of sleet set in here Friday and became a severe snow storm on Saturday continuing in a modified form through Sunday and yesterday All the railroads leading to this city except the Sioux City & Pacific have been blockaded, but the Central is open to day and other roads are fast getting out of the drifts The weather has not been cold but large losses in stock are reported; nearly every farm suffered. One man in this county is reported to have lost 300 head of sheep and losses of cattle from one head to five have occurred in Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa. The oldest inhabitant does not remember such a severe storm so early in the season.

Democratic Municipal Nominations

NEW YORK, October 19 —At a meeting of the conference committees of Tammany and Irving hall democrats, Tammany acceded to the desires of Irving hall to have the nomination for the mayoralty and William R. Grace was agreed on by the Irving hall party. The Tammany hall committee agreed and the name of Grace was unanimously adopted Two hours were spent in making the appointment of officers, no names being settled on. Tammany hall is to nominate a recorder and register, Irving hall a judge of the supreme court and aldermen at large and district aldermen to be equally divided The judge of the marine court nomination was left open till noon tomorrow, to which time the conference adjourned. Fred A Smith will be nominated for recorder, Augustus C. Doherty register, Frank R Lawrence judge of the supreme marine court, Nicholas Houghton, William Laney J J Slosvin and Barnard Kennedy for aldermen at large. The meeting was perfectly harmonious

NEW YORK, October 19.—The Tribune has kind words for Grace, but says the Germans are muttering at the unprecedented representation of Irishmen on the democratic local ticket. Two Irishmen and one son of an Irishman have already been named for three out of five offices If any more Irishmen are nominated the Irish democrats may have to try their hands at electing the ticket alone.

One of the Irving committee told a Times reporter that this was an awful pill to take "We didn't want Grace and supposed Kelly didn't want him Now let the republicans put up a good man like Gen master James or General Lloyd Aspinwall and with the independent vote added either of these men can be elected"

Editorially the Herald says. "Leaving John McKeon out of the question, Mr. Kelly has selected the only Catholic in the list Why? For what good reason Mr. Kelly is not blind or deaf He is not silly or heedless He knows perfectly well that one of the most important, one of the most dangerous elements which can be imported in American politics is that of religious prejudice and fanaticism Why import this dangerous, this uncalled for disturbing element into our politics? He knows as well as any other man in the community that his nomination of Grace for mayor will be laid hold of at once as an attempt to place the city under Catholic influences and rule, and by his own act Kelly thus forces his own church into political discussion, and excites the fanaticism of its opponents and the fanaticism of its supporters.

"Kelly is supposed to desire the success of his party That party is just now making a death struggle for the presidency and against such odds as seem to make defeat very probable, and behold! Kelly insists on an act which, as he knows, and everybody knows, will arouse a new kind of prejudice to be sure, but none the less dangerous for that, against the democrats, and drive not one but a dozen rows of nails into the democratic coffin. He may wish to defeat the democratic party, but is it proper that he should use the church as a club with which to beat out his party's brains?"

The Sun Disgusted.

NEW YORK, October 19 —The World prints this morning several utterances of the sun, before and after election, regarding Hancock and English, showing that they were the fittest and best nominees, and comparing these statements with the Sun's editorial yesterday. In the same connection the World announces itself as a two cent newspaper till after the election, and editorially denounces the Sun as not being a democratic journal. The Sun, however, continues its silly editorials, which are inconsistent with one another, now exhorting the democrats to vote for Hancock and English, and then throwing cold water on the whole ticket. Besides publishing several correspondents' letters upholding its yesterday's article on "No Mincing Matters," it has the following:

"As our candidate excels in writing letters we most deferentially advise him not to write any more, but if he does write any more let him enclose ten dollar bills in transparent envelopes and the republican subordinates in the post office of this city will be sure to break them open, steal the money and destroy the letter so the contents will never see the light General Hancock need write nothing more on the tariff Every one knows that he is in favor of a tariff which will yield the utmost protection to American industries and especially to the democratic party.

"Hancock should devote himself to writing his inaugural and even if it is never delivered the preparation of it will be literary exercise. But if he must write on the tariff let him expressly state that if it had been left to him, he would have put prohibitory tariffs as the real mission of unrepentant rebels to citizens rights after the close of the war. That is about the only letter on the tariff we can conceive of that would help him Unless he is going to write some such letter let him return his goose quill to the original goose."

Sherman's Serenade.

WASHINGTON, October 19.—Secretary Sherman was serenaded last night and made a political speech. Attorney General Devens and others made addresses.

CHICAGO, October 19 —The Inter-Ocean's Washington special says Secretary Sherman's speech last night was the most eloquent of his life, and vehement when he spoke respecting the south, the insolent correspondence of Wade Hampton evidently having inspired him.

The Passenger War.

CHICAGO, October 19.—The Inter-Ocean's New York special says: "Solon Humphreys, of the Wabash, says regarding the passenger war, that the Wabash has been virtually cut out from Chicago by having its passenger depot two miles from the heart of the city. The roads the Wabash is now hurting are responsible for this.

OMAHA, October 19 —The Wabash railroad company to-day flooded this market with tickets from Omaha to Chicago at $8 25 each, the regular rate being $15 00. Between $7 000 and $8 000 worth were sold, principally to speculators. The Iowa pool lines paid no attention to the cut The sale was stopped at six o'clock by a telegram from headquarters. Parties were making preparations to make big purchases to morrow One syndicate to day offered to take $25 000 at five dollars per ticket, but the offer was refused. It is thought that this deduction has been made simply to advertise the Wabash road.

Mapleson's New Company

NEW YORK, October 19.—Colonel Mapleson opened the season of opera at the academy of music last night in "Lucia." The house was crowded. Madame Gerster, Signor Adita, the orchestra and all the artists were received with great favor, Gerste; was overwhelmed with floral offerings from her many friends in the city's best society. Signor Rowells, the new tenor, also commanded decided favor by the pure quality of his voice and the excellence of his method, and in the last act wrought the audience up to a remarkable pitch of enthusiasm

Moody and Sankey.

OMAHA, October 19 —Moody and Sankey, the evangelists, and Martin Luther Hollenbeck, the evangelist and temperance advocate who held meetings in Omaha yesterday, left for San Francisco to day They will make a short stop at Salt Lake and then proceed to San Francisco, where they will remain a month or two and hold meetings.

Hampton's Challenge

CHICAGO, October 19 —The Times' Washington special says Hampton's challenge was delivered to him by Sheriff McKinlay, who said: "Mr Sherman, I have a communication from Senator Wade Hampton which I beg leave to present in person." The secretary thought he had an application for office and waved his visitor to a seat. He remained standing "You will perceive that the letter is sealed, will you kindly open it and read it in my presence" Sherman gave a puff at his cigar and brusquely broke the seal He then nodded to the waiting friend and curtly said "I will take an early opportunity to reply to Senator Hampton's letter.

A Republican Recruit.

COLUMBUS, O., October 19 —Richard Jennings, a leading young democratic politician, clerk of the state supreme court, and recently a candidate for re election on the democratic ticket, to day announces his intention of acting with the republicans Dissatisfaction with the party management in Ohio and the action of the democratic party relative to the money question, and the solid south are said to be his reasons for making the change

A Visit From the Germans

CLEVELAND, October 19 —Five hundred Germans of this city visited Garfield yesterday, and were welcomed in a hearty manner and with a speech of characteristic beauty and weight. Their spokesman made a speech in German, which is understood by Garfield. In concluding his speech Garfield quoted some appropriate lines in German.

For Constable,
JOHN BEATT

The New York Sun is very severe on Hancock's letter on the tariff

Democratic papers have not once alluded to their victory in West Virginia

The News has not yet explained the inconsistency of its candidate and platform on the tariff question

Wade Hampton can gain nothing by appealing to the code It is a confession of weakness on the start

The democrats say that the republicans carried Indiana by purchasing democratic votes This is exceedingly complimentary to the rank and file of the party

Senator Teller's speech last night will have a good effect It was logical and convincing No man in this state has had better opportunities to grasp the political situation than he

Sherman's answer to Hampton makes an excellent campaign document Garfield out of mere gratitude should give Hampton a good foreign appointment for what he has done toward his election

The democratic papers ought to give more attention to Hancock's tariff views and inform the democratic party which believes in a tariff for revenue only how it can consistently support a protectionist

The News mentions five combinations which will elect Hancock The solid south with its 138 votes enters into all these calculations The News seems to have the utmost confidence in tissue ballots and bulldozing

Robert Toombs in a letter to a friend said, "I am as positive that Hancock will be elected as I am that there is a God in heaven" If Toombs still entertains the same views he must be very skeptical on religious subjects

The Denver News attacks the record of General Garfield on the wool tariff If the sheep growers were wholly ignorant on this question the attack might be injurious But it happens that our sheep growers favor the present tariff which Garfield did so much to establish and maintain

The letter which Secretary Sherman wrote to Wade Hampton is as just as it is caustic He very justly associated Hampton with the Ku Klux in so far as he accepted and took advantage of any of the results of their murders It is true that Hampton may not have led any white bulldozers in South Carolina in 1876 or assisted in the murders at Hamburg but he ... ted his election ... through these agencies He may not have voted any tissue ballots but he accepted the election as United States senator from a legislature elected by tissue ballots It will thus be seen that Wade Hampton cannot avoid the responsibility of the dreadful crimes committed in the south by the bulldozing organizations He accepted the fruits of their crimes

The News believes in a tariff for revenue solely It accuses Mr Garfield of entertaining the same views Now if he does the News can only commend his position instead of finding fault The protectionist republicans are equally well satisfied with Mr Garfield's position

Republicans can do most good by seeing that every republican is registered This is the great work before election day On that day it should be seen that every registered republican vote is cast These are the two most important tasks Every republican should make it his business to see that his republican neighbor and acquaintances are registered

Deserved Praise

Mr Charles Cavender of the firm of Rose Marshall & Cavender deserves the plaudits of every honest man for his indomitable energy and intelligent efforts to bring to justice the miserable thieves who have so long robbed the county Indeed Mr C is one of the rising young lawyers of this state and his present self-imposed task speaks him a patriot as well as lawyer No amount of labor and no earthly intimidation can fright this brave young champion of the people from the work he has set his hand to We shall watch the progress of this struggle as will every tax payer in the county with infinite interest We do not hesitate to declare it advance that if the charges are pushed through as commenced a conviction is sure to follow [Leadville Democrat

Garfield and Protection

The president of the free trade club of London England in a recent speech said Free trade is looking up General Garfield a candidate for president in the United States is pledged in the interest of free trade We must forward our interest by forwarding his Thus the British gold humbug comes home to roost —[Denver News

We presume General Garfield is fully as good an authority on his views on this question as the president of the Cobden club On the 4th of June 1878 in closing a speech against a general reduction of the protective duties, including the duty on wool General Garfield spoke as follows

"Mr Chairman, the Committee of Ways and Means has done a large amount of work on this bill The chairman has labored in season and out of season and he deserves credit of his friends for the energy and earnestness with which he has addressed himself to this task But the views which have found expression in his bill must be criticised without regard to personal consideration A bill so radical in its character, so dangerous to our business prosperity would work infinite mischief at this time when the country is just recovering itself from a long period of depression and getting again upon solid ground just coming up out of the wild sea of panic and distress which has tossed us so long

Let it be remembered that 22 per cent of all the laboring people of this country are artisans engaged in manufactures Their culture has been fostered by our tariff laws It is their pursuits and the skill which they have developed that produced the glory of our centennial exhibition To them the country owes the splendor of the position it holds before the world more than to any other equal number of our citizens If this bill becomes a law it strikes down their occupation and throws into the keenest distress the brightest and best elements of our population

I implore this house not to permit us to be thrown into greater confusion, either by letting this bill become a law or by letting it hang over the country as a menace And in all kindness to the chairman of the committee and the gentlemen who think with him I hope we will sit here to night until the second reading of the bill is commenced When the first paragraph has been read I will propose to strike out the enacting clause [Applause upon the republican side of the house

If the committee will do that we can kill the bill to day It is not simply a stalking horse upon which gentlemen can leap to show their horsemanship in debate it is not an innocent lay figure upon which gentlemen may spread the gaudy wares of their rhetoric without harm but it is a great dangerous monster a very Polyphemus which stalks through the land Monstrum horrendum informe ingens cui lumen ademptum If its eye be not out let us take it out and end the agony [Applause on the republican side

The vomit emptiness and feel, to borrow the expression of the great lexicographer, the convulsions of ... with all its plenitude. In ... the creation at least such literary spiders remind us of Thomas Aquinas with his 17 folios, which have now perhaps, scarce 17 readers, of Voltaire and Sir Walter Scott or Jeremy Taylor and Richard Baxter but unfortunately, the quality of their work is in inverse ratio to its quantity. They may be ridiculed for the vanity of their labors, but they will wear public scorn as a garland. They will not, as Anne Bullen did, think it better to dwell with humble livers in content than to be perked up in a glistening grief and wear a golden sorrow. You shall find those who will pride themselves on such novels as recall the Clelie in 10 volumes of Madalene du Scuderi, or her "Grand Cyrus" in 12. Their publisher will duly admonish them that their works if put into boards will be spoiled for waste paper, and not be suitable even for the street which sells odors and incense, they care not. If they obtain no reputation, they wish for none, or if they do wish it why then the desire is better than the fruition. As Uncle Toby, in the construction of his mimic fortifications, his banquets, and several parapets in his bowling green, conceived he was answering the great end of his creation, so these, in their scribbling think they are answering theirs. In this happy delusion they live, in this happy delusion they die, and, dying, leave no line they wish to blot.

Some of the Peculiarities of Maud S

Maud S, the champion trotter of the world, is a long-bodied mare, standing fifteen hands two and a half inches high at the withers and fully sixteen hands high at the hips. Her weight, in trotting condition, is 900 pounds, and her stride, when going at her best, on a straight track, is about eighteen feet. In her great feat at Chicago September 18, when she trotted a mile in 2:10¾, her stride, when coming down the home stretch against a high wind, was a little less than seventeen feet. She wears "shin boots" and "scalpers," and carries a 15 ounce shoe, with a 4 ounce toe weight in front, and an 8 ounce shoe behind. She is usually driven in a bridle without "blinds," but, in the trial above alluded to, a blind bridle was used. The reason for this change, as given by her driver, Mr Bair, is, that in her trial of Thursday, September 16, when she trotted a mile in 2:11¼, he thought it best to touch her lightly with the whip when coming down the home stretch. She saw the whip lifted for the stroke, and swerved from it. He then touched her on the other side to straighten her course, and another swerve, which resulted in a break, by which she lost a second of time, was the consequence. This was the first time he had ever touched her with a whip and he argued that with "blinkers" he could do this without causing her to swerve. The result of Saturday's trial proved the correctness of his conclusions, and in her trials hereafter the blinkers will always be used.

She is a mare of very strong will, and it is necessary to handle her with great gentleness. A man who would fight her would soon render her unmanageable. And in this she is the counterpart of her grandam, Enchantress, as well as of her sire, Abdallah. The old mare had the courage and resolution of the bull dog, and this quality descended to all her produce. Harold and Lakeland Abdallah both possess it to a remarkable degree and if they had fallen when young into gentle, careful hands, as Maud S fortunately did, it is certain that they would both have been distinguished as fast trotters. Black Maria a daughter of Enchantress also possesses the same peculiarity of disposition. Her head is almost an exact fac simile of that of Maud S, clearly indicating that resolution, will and energy, which, if carefully handled and educated, is the most valuable quality a horse can possess, but which if abused and perverted, makes a dangerous instead of a useful animal. It has long been a subject of remark among horsemen who are familiar with the descendants of Old Abdallah, that in the matter of endurance and strong will power, they have no superior even among the most distinguished thoroughbreds. It is no wonder, therefore, that Harold, whose sire and dam were by this famous old horse should possess this trait, and that he should have transmitted it to his daughter, Maud S.—Chicago Live Stock Journal.

Archibald Forbes the Great War Correspondent as a Lecturer

As the peals of the organ died away in Chickering Hall last night, a murmur of impatient applause broke out from the large audience, which was fully conscious that the time had crept on until twenty minutes past 8. Then there was a lull, but the applause broke out again with redoubled force as a side door opened on the stage and a tall man, in full evening dress, walked out upon the platform. With hardly a glance at the audience and without acknowledging the applause that greeted him he quietly opened his manuscript and in a ... and businesslike way began to read his lecture. As he stood behind the reading stand the severely plain lines of his evening dress showed with flattering distinction his wonderful physique. Of unusual height with broad, square shoulders, deep full chest, a long thick trunk, cleanly cut flanks and powerful limbs, the slightest movement showed the possession of wonderful muscular strength, evenly and fully developed. His square head was uprightly poised on a full well rounded neck. His thin hair scrupulously parted in the middle, left the square outlines of his broad forehead dis-

He then despatched a letter of the most unexceptionable calligraphy extant, inviting the young lady to a matinee. She revolted at the idea, refused to consider herself sacrificable to his desires, and sent a polite note of refusal, on receiving which he procured a carbine and a bowie knife, said that he would not now forge fetters hymeneal with the queen, went to an isolated spot, severed his jugular vein, and discharged the contents of his carbine into his abdomen. The debris was removed by the coroner. The mistakes in pronunciation were made on the following words: Sacrilegious, Belial, bronchitis, exhausted, finances, deficit, comely, lenient, docile, Malay, calliope, chameleon, suite, coadjutor, calligraphy, matinee, sacrificable, carbine, hymeneal, isolated, jugular and debris.—[Rutland (Vermont) Herald.

Where Our Honey Comes From.

The new crop of honey is coming to market in small quantities. The white clover honey is very fine in quality, and the quantity is expected to be larger than last year, when good pure honey was scarce and high. The best honey in the world is the Swiss honey, considerable quantities of which are shipped to this country and sold in all markets. Of course only the extracted honey comes from Switzerland. It is worth about $1 25 a quart, or $5 a gallon. The best American honey comes from California. This is the great honey-producing country on this continent. From the vicinity of the "White Mountains," so called because they are white with clover blossoms, comes the best collected in the state. Vast stretches of upland and mountain, slope and summit, are covered with a luxuriant growth of white clover that at a distance appears like an expanse of snow. Those who have visited the clover belt and honey region say that the hum of bees throughout these fields is continuous day in and day out, and that the bees seem to regard the clover fields as their particular province, and resent intrusion. However that may be, white clover honey is the best, and the best of it as well as the largest quantity comes from California. In the far western states some attention has been given to bees, and some buckwheat and half wild honey produced. Virginia is noted for its wild honey. Some of the inhabitants make it a business to collect it, and the finding of it requires some knowledge of the bee movements. A bee is caught, and at the proper time of day is liberated. It returns to its swarm, and as it flies in a "bee line," its home can be found by taking the point and with the aid of a compass following in the same direction, up hill and down, until the swarm is found. The tree is felled and the honey taken. Eight or ten pails of honey are often obtained from a single hollow tree. A small part of Virginia wild honey is collected.

Nearer home the great honey region is in Western New York, and from this part of the country the honey now in the market comes. Vermont and New Hampshire, in fact all states send more or less honey to market. Honey consumers prefer honey in the comb for in the comb it must be pure while out of it it may be any kind of inferior syrup, glucose or some other product that will not sell under its own name. If consumers were sure of the pure article out of the comb, extracted honey would sell more readily. It sells very well now but the buyer does not know whether it is honey or something else. All honey, however should be extracted before it is eaten for in spite of care some of the comb or wax will be eaten with the honey, and beeswax disturbs the digestive machinery. Honey comb bears the same relation to honey that husk bears to corn, shell to nut, rind to fruit, and is no more fit as an article of food than any of them. A machine has been invented to extract honey. The comb is taken from the hive placed in the machine which is rapidly revolved, and the honey thrown out by the centrifugal process. The comb is returned to the hive to be filled again and the bees are saved the trouble of building another comb or cellular case. A single swarm of bees have often manufactured $25 worth of honey in a season.

Bees can be kept anywhere—on the roof, over the porch, in any place where there is room for a hive. It is said by some, and denied by others, that bees extract honey from decaying matter, street garbage and the like. At least bees are seen at work where refuse abounds, and from appearances, Sampson's riddle is as true as it ever was, which is saying very little. Last year the best honey was worth 24 to 25 cents, the price now for job lots is 20 to 21 cents. The price is likely to be higher, owing to the high price of butter, which is 10 to 12 cents above last year's prices. A ... advances honey is in greater demand as a substitute and prices are affected. The shipment of honey abroad is very large. One firm in New York last year shipped 80 tons at one shipment. It is said that dentists reap a better crop in those districts where honey is largely used.

HARRY ILES.

The number of tents in this city which are occupied by families is surprising.

The Presbyterian church is much improved in appearance by the recent additions which have been made.

The Garfield and Arthur banner at Tejon street and Pike's Peak avenue, is the property of the club. It is a national flag.

The Pueblo Democrat records the fact that a wagon passed through Pueblo the other day with the following legend painted on the cover:

In God we trusted;
Through Pitkin we busted

Work is progressing on the excavations for the foundation of the new Methodist church. The architect, Mr. T. A. Weston, advertises for bids from carpenters to take the contract for the wood work of the building.

Three hundred Mormons are now on their way from Salt Lake City to Southern Colorado and New Mexico. They are coming overland in private conveyances, and it is their intention to work on the southern extension of the Denver & Rio Grande.

At the meeting of Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, last evening in the engine house, a vote of thanks was passed to Messrs. A. V. Hunter and D. Durfee for presenting the boys with handsome fire men's hats The hats are of the regulation helmet pattern, and are useful as well as ornamental.

A certificate of assay was yesterday received by Mr. T. A Hay from Mr. Herman Silver, of the Denver mint, which places a valuation of $1.592 60 to the ton, on ore taken from the Morning Star mine, in Colorado Springs Basin. This valuable property is a recent discovery and the assay was rendered on ore taken from the assessment hole. The property is owned by Messrs. T. A. Hay, F. H. Hayman and W. H. Wharton. The Colorado Springs Basin above referred to was named by parties from this city, and is located in the famous Rock Creek district. The same persons are also owners of other valuable claims in the same locality.

Personal.

Mr. J. S. Wolfe was in the city yesterday.

The Hon. H. M. Teller is at the Colorado Springs hotel.

Messrs. L. Alexander, of Denver, and J R. Martin, of Pueblo, are at the National.

Mr. J. D. Craissant and wife and Mr. John M. Young, of Washington, D. C., are at the National.

Col. E. R. Stiles left yesterday for New Mexico, where he is extensively interested in railroad construction.

Mr J H Clinkscales left yesterday for his home in Carrollton, Mo, via the Santa Fe. He will probably return to Colorado again next spring

Mr. B F Niece, the druggist, has returned from the Gunnison country, where he spent the summer He is the possessor of some very promising claims in that section of the state.

Mrs. Kate Blake, wife of Mr. Wesley Blake, of the signal service, who was formerly stationed in this city, left recently for Idaho, where Mr. Blake is now in charge of a station.

TWO KINDS OF POLITICS

Presented to the People For Consideration

Judge Morrison and Senator Teller Discuss Live Issues Before a Large Audience

Last evening was made memorable to the people of Colorado Springs by one of the largest political meetings that ever gathered in Court House Hall. The conjunction of the appointment of the Hon R. S Morrison with that of Senator H. M. Teller, the one representing the democratic idea and the other the republican, made it convenient to hold a joint meeting, and the result was that every inch of room in the hall, including the stage and two dressing rooms, was occupied by people eager to listen to the discussion of the political questions of the day by two such distinguished gentlemen.

At 7 o'clock last evening the Boys in Blue, the Lovejoy Legion and the Garfield and Arthur Club formed in line on Tejon street, in front of their headquarters in Union Block.

The torch light procession led by the Colorado Springs brass band, marched through the principal streets of the city, and made a very handsome display. When the court house was reached the hall was found to be filled with people who had been wise enough to come early All of those who could by any process of compression secure foothold within the doors of the hall did so.

Upon the platform were seated the speakers of the evening; Dr. Strickler, president of the Hancock and English club, and Mr. L. E. Sherman, president of the Garfield and Arthur club. When quiet had been secured Dr. Strickler introduced the Hon. R. S. Morrison, who was received with applause. Mr. Morrison, after a graceful allusion to the occasion, began a speech which was confined principally to the silver issue and the record of General Garfield upon that question.

Reference was also made to the alleged fraud by which President Hayes was seated, and the fact that the republicans still allude to the war was criticised. Mr. Morrison's speech was adorned with frequent classical allusions, and at times was spirited and eloquent. It was confined in its scope however, to comparatively local topics, but these were treated in a frank and gentlemanly manner, which created a decidedly friendly feeling. The speaker was frequently greeted with applause, and once or twice when interrupted by a question from the audience turned the point on his questioner with ready wit and skill

At the conclusion of Mr. Morrison's address, the republican glee club sang a campaign song which was heartily cheered. Mr. L. E Sherman then introduced Senator Teller who was greeted with prolonged and enthusiastic cheers. The senator began by referring in highly complimentary terms to the gentleman who had preceded him. He said that he considered Mr. Morrison an honest man and a gentleman but he hoped he would not be elected and he expressed this hope because he believed the gentleman to be entirely wrong on the great political questions of the day. He said that he differed with the gentleman as to the importance of the silver question, for important as that question is, there is one which is above and beyond all other questions and that is the perpetuity of our country as a nation. The fundamental doctrine of democracy is that the United States form a confederation and that a state is sovereign. The speaker dwelt upon this point at considerable length and with great eloquence. He brought to the support of his assertion the logic of facts of which he had been personally cognizant He said that the same struggle which resulted in the war of the rebellion was now waging only in another form. He quoted southern senators who always spoke of the "sovereign state" which they represented, he quoted Robert Tombs who said that the south would gain by the ballot what she had lost by the bullet.

The senator then referred to that plank in the democratic platform which declares for a free ballot and asked by what right the democratic party made such a declaration, He then gave the result of his own investigations in the south when chairman of the congressional committee. He recounted some of the frauds committed by southern democrats, he instanced a few of the political murders and he showed by what terrorism, cruelty, fraud and treachery the southern democrats had practically disfranchised half a million of republican voters in the south. In this recital, which the senator said gave but a faint idea of the situation, he only quoted facts sworn to by democrats of the south and undenied by his democratic associates upon the investigating committee He said, "Wade Hampton, the former democratic governor of South Carolina whose recent correspondence with Secretary Sherman has been read by you all in which he gives us a sample of old plantation manners, which in spite of the alleged loyalty of the south seems still to survive, Wade Hampton was cognizant of these frauds If he didn't know of them he must have been strangely impervious to information, for those tissue ballots, five thousand of which were dumped into the box at one time, were facetiously termed "Little Hamptons

Turning to the silver question, Senator Teller gave a brief but masterly resume of its history. He showed the falseness of the charge that Garfield is an enemy to silver and that the republican party are determined to demonetize it

Referring to the extracts read from Judge Bradley's decision by Mr Morrison to the effect that fraud and corruption were used to elect Hayes, the senator turned the point by saying that the extract had been read from democratic authorities, and that one very important word had been omitted and that word was "if." This statement was received with rounds of applause and hearty laughter. "Yes, said the senator, "Judge Bradley did say those things, but he prefixed the word "if If such and such things were so said the judge, then there was fraud and corruption "

Thus far the senator had spoken with logic and power, but when he come to refer to the democratic cry for a change, his ironical and humorous treatment of the subject was irresistible and the frequent cheers, hearty laughter and tremendous applause of his hearers testified to the appreciation of the audience.

In conclusion he spoke of the republican party as the friend and champion of liberty, the benefactor of the laboring man and the defender of the ballot. His references to Abraham Lincoln, the rail splitter, Ulysses S. Grant, the tanner, and James A. Garfield, the canal boy, were greeted with the wildest enthusiasm.

Senator Teller's address abounded in stirring passages, it was suffused with the eloquence of truth and was expressed with the force of conviction. It did not deal in generalities and it was not bound ed by local topics. It embraced all the great national questions of the day and while, as we have said, it was not devoted to local issues, yet none of these were neglected

The meeting was a great success and while we cannot claim it as a purely republican gathering we can congratulate ourselves upon the fact that so able a man as Senator Teller has had the opportunity of talking to the democrats of El Paso county as well as to the republicans.

DISTRICT COURT.

Reducing the Cases on an Already Small Docket.

Judge Elliot, in the district court yesterday, was engaged most of the day in hearing arguments and giving orders in civil cases, a large number of which were continued Three criminal cases were brought before the court, and the defendants in each case plead guilty and were fined by his honor.

In the case of the People vs. William Cundy, charged with selling whisky without a license, the defendant plead guilty and a fine of $30 and costs was assessed.

There was also a second charge against Cundy, that of keeping an open tippling house on the Sabbath day. He plead guilty to this charge as well, and was fined $10 and costs.

In the case of the People vs. F. Herman, charged with keeping an open tippling house on the Sabbath day, the defendant entered a plea of guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

The hearing on demurrer of the civil case for damages of Johnson vs. the Colorado Springs Company, will come up today.

The grand jury is still out and it is not known when it will be "ready" to report There are not a great number of important matters before it for inquiry, however, and it is not thought that the small list of criminal cases now on the docket will be much enlarged by its labors.

The court adjourned at the conclusion of business yesterday until this morning

Obituary—David Russ Wood.

David Russ Wood, Esq, died at his residence in this city at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Wood had been quite ill for nearly three months and frequently during that time reports that he could not long survive were current upon the streets. Those who knew him best however, recognizing his will power, and remembering how many times within the past seven years he had emerged from the very shadow of death, felt hopeful that he would survive his illness, severe as it was. They were therefore not wholly prepared for the news of his death which was sadly announced upon the streets yesterday morning.

Mr Wood was born in a small place called Frost Village, in the Eastern townships of Canada, in February 1823 and was consequently in his 58th year at the time of his death. His early education was obtained at a French college in Canada, but when still quite young he went to the college at Burlington, Vermont, at which he was graduated, Soon thereafter he studied law in Montreal was admitted to the bar, and practiced his profession for some time. Finding the confinement too irksome he abandoned the law and became engaged in the wholesale dry goods business A few years before removing to Colorado he became largely interested in the Huntington copper mines, located about 80 miles from Montreal, and but a few miles from his birthplace In the latter business he was highly successful. About eight years ago Mr Wood's health failed him and in the latter part of Oct. 1873 he removed from Montreal to Colorado Springs His health was very poor at that time, and his friends had but little hope that he could live longer than a few months Our climate, however, proved to be highly beneficial to him, and he soon so far recovered as to be able to walk and drive about with but little discomfort For many months at a time Mr Wood could be daily seen upon the streets, and in his office actively engaged in business, from which he would occasionally be taken by spells of sickness of greater or less severity

Colorado Springs has never had a citizen who took a greater or more active interest in everything promotive of its interests than the deceased. Though not engaged in mercantile pursuits, be was always in the front of every effort to increase the trade of the town. In educational matters he felt the liveliest interest and devoted a large portion of his time, during the past three or four years, to the founding of Colorado College, of which he has been a trustee ever since its inception, and an active member of its building committee since ground was first broken over two years ago He took an early and deep interest in the work of supplying the city with water, and no one was more gratified than he at the complete success of the system. He was largely instrumental also in introducing gas into the city, and was president of the company during the construction of the works. The introduction of the manufacture of plaster and hydraulic cement here, from which the town has derived so much benefit, was largely due to his efforts.

Mr. Wood believed that his life had been prolonged for many years by his removal to Colorado Springs, and he never failed to praise the climate that had been to him the breath of life. Many of our present citizens came hither through his recommendations. He was a firm believer in the continued growth and prosperity of his adopted city, of which he was ever proud, and devoted many an hour to its defense against sinister predictions and unfriendly criticisms. The deceased was wholly indifferent to that personal popularity which relies upon labored and, too often, insincere efforts to please the ignorant and unthinking. He detested garnished dissimulation, yet his manner was the embodiment of gentlemanly courtesy. He was often importuned to become a candidate for public office, but always firmly declined.

The citizens of Colorado Springs will greatly miss his well known form upon the streets and his council in their affairs, but sweet will be the memory of his life and fruitful of good his noble example.

The Turkey Creek Cattle Association is now engaged in rounding up the cattle belonging to that company. The cattle are said to be looking very well.

The late train on C. S & M. R. R. has been withdrawn, It is the one that left Manitou at 10:15 p. m., and left here on the return trip at 11 05 p. m., or immediately after the arrival of the Leadville express.
